

FIND COMPLETED TEMPLE WORK

The church maintains a record of all completed temple ordinances of deceased persons online at www.familysearch.org, called the International Genealogical Index, or IGI. This guide will help you find and download information from the IGI.

Steps to find completed temple work

Log in to FamilySearch.org

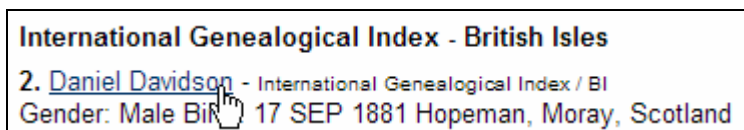

1. Go to www.familysearch.org
2. Click “Sign On” in the upper right corner of the page. (Sign on is required to obtain temple ordinance information.)

3. Enter your username and password. Click “Sign On”. If you haven’t created an account, you’ll need to do that first.

Find relatives in the IGI

4. Click on the tab labeled “Search”
5. Type in the first and last name of a member of your family. Your grandparents are more likely to be in the database than your parents.
6. If you know it, type in the birth year of this individual. Select “Birth/Christening” from the “Event” drop-down.
7. Click Search
8. FamilySearch returns results from all of its databases. To find completed temple work, look for results under the heading “International Genealogical Index”.
9. If no results are found under International Genealogical Index, try a different search. You may try removing the birth year or entered parents’ names.
10. If you find a match, click on the name of the most likely match. One individual may have multiple records in the IGI (ex. Endowment & Sealing to Spouse)

A screenshot of the search interface on FamilySearch.org. It features three dropdown menus: 'Event' (set to 'Birth/Christening'), 'Year Range' (empty), and 'Year' (set to '1881'). Below these is a 'Country' dropdown set to 'All Countries'. At the bottom, there is a checkbox for '* Use exact spelling', a 'Search' button with a mouse cursor over it, and a 'Clear' button.
